Allyn J. Roe, Business Development Director

Gibboney Appoints Roe Business Development Director

Allyn J. Roe assumed the role of Business Development Director for Port of Olympia in late August 2019 according to Sam Gibboney, Executive Director.

Roe brings the Port a strong background in business development, real estate development, and airport management.

Most recently, Roe worked at Industrial Park at TransAlta as Chief Operating Officer. Previously, he served as Airport Manager of the Chehalis-Centralia Airport for eight years, where he oversaw day-to-day operations and retail marketing.

Roe earned his Bachelor of Science in Aviation Management from Central Washington University in Ellensburg, Washington, and his Airport Executive Accreditation from the American Association of Airport Executives in Alexandria, Virginia.

“The Port received many excellent applications for this position,” said Gibboney, “And while the competition was close, we found Allyn to be the best fit for the Port of Olympia. We are looking forward to having Allyn on the Port’s leadership team and working with him to continue to build and foster the Port’s commitment to economic development, growth and revenue generation in Thurston County.”
